

NARS Opens New Office in Las Vegas

MAITLAND, Fla.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--North American Risk Services (NARS), one of the country's leading claims management firms, announced today that its Construction Defect Unit has further strengthened its servicing capabilities with the establishment of a new office in Las Vegas, Nevada. Keith Anderson has been appointed to manage both the Las Vegas office and the Western Region as a whole. Keith has over 20 years of multi-line claims handling experience with The Hartford, Maryland Casualty and the Nationwide Group, where he was Claims Director for their California Construction Defect Unit handling all aspects of those claims in Arizona, California and Nevada. Keith holds a Bachelor of Science in Economics degree from California State University, San Luis Obispo. The new office will be located at 2795 E. Desert Inn Rd., Suite 145B, Las Vegas, NV 89121 and is expected to begin operation in late May.

"The Pacific Region continues to be a key market in the Construction Defect arena and our customers' needs throughout the area have continued to grow," said Robert Ruryk, President/Chief Operating Officer of North American Risk Services (NARS). "Keith and his staff's extensive experience in this market niche significantly improve our claim handling capabilities. Further, by positioning ourselves in closer geographic proximity to a sizeable portion of our clients, we will be able to add economic efficiencies to our already high level of service."

Walt Sliva, Chief Executive Officer of North American Risk Services (NARS) indicated, "Our expansion strategy has always been driven, first and foremost, by our customers' needs. By responding to our customers' requests for more of a West Coast presence, we hope to both exceed their service requirements and reduce their overall loss costs. We look forward to even better partnerships with our various stakeholders."
